Beck in Fresh Trouble

Challenged For Lead of Teamsters

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Labor Rackets Committee planned today to investigate soon deals between mystery man Nathan Shefferman and "at least a couple of other unions" besides his friend Dave Beck's Teamsters.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy told reporters the committee may be ready by about June 15 to dig deeper into the affairs of Shefferman, a 70-year-old Chicago labor relations consultant for 300-odd business firms including some of the nation's largest department stores.

The testimony of Shefferman and other witnesses has linked him in at least four deals with Beck, president of the Teamsters Union and the committee's prime target to date.

Beck Reportedly Challenged

Beck also is reported facing fresh troubles within his own union. John T. O'Brien, fourth Teamsters vice president, has said he will run against Beck for president on a "clean-up" ticket, according to the Chicago Daily News.

O'Brien called Beck a "damned fool" to his face at a recent Teamsters executive board meeting, the News said. He said he would accept the presidency "if the executive board can persuade Beck to resign or even if he has to be forced out," it said.

An informed union source said, however, that "O'Brien is not the choice of the executive board." The source said "sooner or later Beck has got to go" but that O'Brien's reported decision to run for the presidency "is his own idea—not the executive board's."

"O'Brien could not win even if he tried," the source said.

Kennedy said the committee has no present plans to recall Beck, who has invoked the Fifth Amendment more than 200 times. But he said the inquiry into Shefferman's affairs "will probably involve Beck."

He would not identify the other unions that might be involved. Under questioning, however, he said efforts of the Retail Clerk's Union to organize a department store might involve Shefferman.

Businessmen Also Target

Kennedy said some businessmen probably would be questioned also.

The committee wound up the present phase of the hearings Friday after fruitlessly questioning Norman Gessert, a cousin of Mrs. Beck, who has been linked in testimony with Shefferman.

Gessert, sought by the committee for weeks before being served with a subpena this week, proved an even more reluctant witness than Beck. Gessert refused to answer committee questions and invoked the Fifth Amendment 75 times in half an hour, refusing even to say if he knew Beck.

Some committee members joined members of the Senate Labor Committee in sponsoring the first piece of legislation aimed at correcting abuses of union funds exposed by the hearings. The bill would authorize publication of union financial reports and other information.

BECK-ONED — Norman Gessert, cousin of Teamsters President Dave Beck's wife, turns a smiling countenance on the camera at the Senate labor probe in Washington, where he arrived by subpoena propulsion. He is intermingled in Beck's financial involvement.

Fulton Changes His Stand on Kinzua Project

PITTSBURGH (UP)— Rep. James G. Fulton (R-Pa.) has changed his stand on the Kinzua flood control project and will support it if it comes before the House for a vote.

Fulton, who a few days ago announced his opposition to the project, said Friday he has "moderated" his stand and cancelled plans to put his opposition on record before a House Appropriations subcommittee.

Fulton attended subcommittee hearings this week when Pennsylvania officials and civic groups urged approval of a budget appropriation of one million dollars for a start on the dam and reservoir on the Allegheny River at Kinzua, Pa. He announced then that he and Rep. John P. Saylor (R-Pa.), who also announced his opposition to the project, would appear before the subcommittee later to put themselves on record.

"If the appropriation is kept in the budget by the subcommittee, I will wholeheartedly join the team and work for the appropriation from there on, just as I did in the case of the Conemaugh Dam," Fulton said Friday.

Fulton said his opposition had been based on economy and on pressure from voters for cutting the federal budget.

Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh said Friday he was confident the House would approve the appropriation for the start of construction.

The project's cost has been estimated at more than 100 million dollars.

Bauer, Sculco Praise City's Progess; Judge Says County Is 'Clean'

"Westmoreland County and the City of Monessen have made tremendous progressive strides under the present Democratic administration," Judge Edward G. Bauer said last night at a rally attended by some 250 persons at the New Italian Hall.

Bauer, who is seeking reelection as Common Court Pleas judge, said Monessen "under Mayor (Hugo J.) Parente is not only the envy of county communities but state communities as well. The City is to be congratulated for the progress it has made and is making. It is the talk of the state."

In an another appeal for Monessen votes, Bauer said the City is almost absolutely free of juvenile deliquency and major crimes. He said it is a "record all of you can be proud of."

He then went on to claim that the County "is one of the cleanest counties in the state. I defy anyone to challenge that record".

Low Crime Rate

Bauer said that juvenile deliquency is less than one per cent in the County. He attributed this low rate to the crime prevention methods used by the district attorney and county detectives.

District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco, who is also a judgeship candidate on the "regular" Democratic slate, made his appeal for votes along the same lines as Bauer, telling of the progress being made in the county and Monessen and the "good record" he has made in the D.A.'s office.

Mayor Parente and other members of the City Hall slate also made brief remarks.

The Mayor said Monessen has made much progress the past several years and "I believe the people should start talking about the City and its accomplishments.

"Be proud of your town. Tell people in other towns how great a town you live in."

Also speaking were Councilmen David Victoria and John Molnar, City Treasurer John Spielman and City Controller James Tucci. All are seeking reelection in Tuesday's primary.

Another speaker was Stephen Wisyansky, staff representative of District 13, United Steelworkers (AFL-CIO). Frank P. Ezerski, City solicitor, was master of ceremonies.

Following the talks, "The Monessen Story," a sound moving picture, was shown.

Asks New Trial for McKeesport Mayor

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Common Pleas Court was asked Friday to order a new trial for Mayor Andrew J. Jakomas of McKeesport on charges of violating the third class city code.

Assistant District Attorney William C. Smith, in filing a motion for a new trial, said Judge Clarence B. Nixon acted "contrary to the law and contrary to the evidence" in dismissing the case against Jakomas at his trial last Monday.

Jakomas was accused of voting on a resolution to compromise tax liens on property he owned.

Campaign Briefs —

Next Three Days To Be Busy Ones For Candidates

The next three days will be busy ones for Monessen politicians. Many meetings, some of which will be private, have been scheduled.

Tonight Mayor Hugo J. Parente and other members of the City Hall slate will meet beginning at 7:30 with male members and ladies auxiliaries of the Polish National Alliance at its club at 214 Knox Ave.

Tomorrow the same slate has meetings scheduled for the Croatian Club and Slovak Home.

The slate's wind-up meeting will be held at Arch Tavern Monday at 8 p. m.

Parente's opponent, John R. Stieska, said today he has several meetings scheduled but did not reveal the times or places for "psychological reasons."

Door Appeal

Dr. G. L. Trilli, candidate for City Controller, and his wife, are just about at the end of their door-to-door appeal for votes. The husband and wife team has been making these calls for nearly four weeks.

Crowd Likes 'Story'

The showing of "The Monessen Story" last night at the rally held at the New Italian Hall drew a loud applause from the nearly 250 persons present. The film, property of the Parente slate, will be

Negro Graduate At Clinton High

CLINTON, Tenn. (UP)—A Negro boy with 87 white classmates Friday night became the first member of his race to be graduated by a state-supported integrated high school this deep in the South.

Far from the sidelines, segregationist John Kasper commented in Knoxville, Tenn., that he hoped the Negro boy also would have the added distinction of being the last.

Bobby Cain, 17, was the 35th of the students in cap and gown to receive his diploma from Asst. Principal Mrs. Juanita Moser in the gymnasium ceremony before an unsegregated audience of 600.

There was not hint of tension or disorder at this scene of last fall's recurring violence which has resulted in 17 arrests on federal contempt charges and at one time brought National Guard tanks on the rush.

Up State Aid To Unemployed

HARRISBURG (UP)—Two bills increasing state aid to unemployed and disabled workers were introduced in the state Legislature Thursday.

One bill would raise maximum weekly payments under the Workmen's Compensation Act from $37 to $42 for total disability and from $27 to $32 for partial disability.

The second would increase jobless pay benefits for workers with three or more dependents $5 weekly, with a maximum set at $40.

Both bills were sponsored by Democratic Sens. Joseph J. Yosko (Northampton), Thomas J. Kalman (Fayette), Frank W. Ruth (Berks) and Miles R. Derk (Lycoming).

NEW YORK (UP)—A "severe" earthquake apparently centered in the Aleutian Islands was recorded by Fordham University seismographs early today, the Rev. Joseph Lynch reported.

Dow Lad's Condition Is Reported as 'Fair'

Charles David Dow, 17, of 1223 Marion Ave., remains in "fair" condition in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital today with injuries suffered early yesterday morning in a one-car accident which took the life of Joseph Garofalo Jr., 17, of 1331 Reeves Ave., Monessen.

Garofalo, a Monessen High School senior, died of head and internal injuries about five hours after the accident happened on Rt. 71, two miles east of Belle Vernon.

Hospital attendants today said Dow, driver of the car, is suffering from a head injury, shoulder fracture and severe back injuries.

The two youths were returning home after a late snack at a restaurant when tragedy struck. Dow failed to negotiate a turn in his 1957 MG sports roadster and lost control. The car ran up an embankment, overturned and bounced back onto the highway, landing on its opened top.

Garofalo and Dow were tossed out of the car and landed on the highway. Both were taken to Charleroi - Monessen Hospital. Garofalo later was transferred to Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh where he died at 6:30 yesterday morning.

Garofalo's remains are at the Cozza Funeral Home, Reed Ave., Monessen. Funeral services for the Monessen High School senior will be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Cajetan Church.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garofalo Sr., a sister, Mrs. Ronald (Michaelene) Campana, of Monessen; and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scalise, of Monessen.

A fireman and fellow rescue worker try to see the boy, trapped 22 feet down. The hole gets to only 10 inches in diameter.

Rescuers toil under lights, hampered by night and the crowd.

RESCUED FROM HOLE — Here are scenes of the nightime-daytime effort to rescue seven-year-old Benjamin Hooper, Jr., from the 10-inch well into which he slipped at Manorville, N. Y. in eastern Long Island. He was saved last evening and is resting today in a New York hospital.

Volunteer Tells How It Felt to Free Boy

(Sam Woodson, a 39-year-old Negro construction worker, was the first person to reach Benny Hooper, Jr., in his sandy tomb. Here is Woodson's story.)

By SAM WOODSON

MANORVILLE, N. Y. (UP) — I heard about that boy at work and all of a sudden I got the sensation that God was saying to me, "Sam, you must go and help that boy out."

I went home and told my wife, "I'm going to see if I can help that boy. My wife called her sister and they went to the church to pray for him.

I went to the boy's house. People tried to keep me back but I pushed through. I was in and out of that hole all day.

I kept thinking, "God told me to come here so the boy must be alive and I'll get him out." I got tired but I thought of my little girl and it helped keep me going.

Heard Whimper

I was digging carefully when I saw the jacket covering the top of Benny's head. I started to brush the sand away from his coat when I heard him whimper.

Just then we started to cave in. I grabbed him a little bit hard and I heard him cry. I held on and took the coat off his head and he looked at me and started to groan.

I didn't have a chance to talk to him. I talked to God.

I had to yank Benny pretty hard because the sand really started coming. And when I yanked, John Arambo, the worker behind Sam, yanked me to keep me from letting go. But we got him out.

When we found him, I turned to John and told him, "The boy is alive, thank God."

I looked at that boy and looked into his big blue eyes and I said "you, that was the happiest moment of my life."

Tells Wives How To Get Along With Husbands

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Wives of business executives must understand that a lot of the things their husbands do are done to gain relief from the tensions of business.

Like going to a cocktail party and getting "cozy with a blonde."

"It isn't because he is a wolf at heart, but because he is trying to get recognition," Dr. Robert J. Agnew, University of Pittsburgh professor, told a group of 38 executives' wives at a lecture-forum Friday.

Agnew, who was instructing the wives as a regular part of his course in management problems, said there were three things an executive's wife should do.

Provide a calming atmosphere at home as a relief from the tensions of modern business life.

Not drive her husband to an early grave by demanding more and more to "keep up with the Joneses."

Provide a sounding board for him to talk out his troubles.

Boy Is Resting Comfortably in Nearby Hospital

MANORVILLE, N. Y. (UP) — Seven-year-old Benny Hooper was recovering today from the ordeal of entrapment for nearly 24 hours at the bottom of a well.

He slept through the night in an oxygen tent in Bay View Hospital where he was taken after his dramatic rescue from shifting sand and the threat of suffocation.

When he awakened he told a nurse, "I feel fine.' Then he added:

"My body is sore."

Dr. Frank Calabro said Benny's main need is rest.

The little boy fell into the newly dug well about 8 p.m. Thursday in the yard of his home here.

"I was running and I hit the dirt," he told his father, Benjamin Hooper Sr.

Kept Alive By Oxygen

Kept alive in the narrow hole by a tube that fed 20 tanks of oxygen to him while desperate workers dug a parallel rescue shaft, Benny was pulled from the earth at 7:46 p.m. e.d.t. Friday, six minutes after he was reached.

His first words were "Mommy—Daddy.'

Today, Benny asked also for his sister, Wendy.

Then he said, "I want to go home."

Hooper said the well had been intended to supply water for his lawn and his children's gardens.

"I guess the garden is ruined this year but I'll have it fixed up fine next year, and I plan to go through with plans for the well despite the accident," he said.

A tube which pumped life-preserving oxygen into the chill, dark shaft throughout Benny's entrapment—and which despite sifting sand miraculously hovered less than an inch from his mouth—was believed by doctors to have kept the boy alive in what even the most optimistic feared had become a sandy grave.

Jacket Also Helped

Another fortune of chance—the billowing of Benny's jacket as he became wedged in the darkened well shaft—also helped save the life of the sandy-haired second-grader, doctors said. Miraculously, the jacket—worn because of an unseasonable chill—had created an air pocket, catching the potentially death - dealing sandslides that occurred sporadically during 23 hours of frantic rescue operations. The rescue was climaxed at 7:31 Friday night when a 39-year-old Negro construction worker braved a cave-in 25 feet below the surface and freed the half conscious boy from his trap.

From the pit of the emergency crater, came the cry of Dr. J. H. Kris, the Hooper family's physician.

"The boy's alive. He's alive."

Spectators fell on their knees, many with their heads skyward, in silent prayer. Some screamed deliriously. Others applauded. A chorus of spectators chanted, "He's alive! He's alive!"

Mother Embraces Son

As two workmen gently lifted Benny from the crater, his mother, tears streaming down her face, ran from the house where she had been under a physician's care for shock since learning of the tragedy while at work as a telephone operator.

Beaming with joy, she embraced the blanket-wrapped form of the son she had all but given up for dead. Then, as the boy was placed in an ambulance, Mrs. Hooper, sobbing aloud, embraced her

Egypt Hints at Soviet Backing In UN Debate

By UNITED PRESS

Egypt hinted today it would have the solid backing of the Soviet Union and the Soviet veto when the Security Council meets Monday to consider France's demand that the entire Suez Canal question be reopened.

Cairo dispatches said Egypt would fight France's effort to reopen talks on the canal question but would be protected by the Soviet veto against anti - Egyptian movement in any case.

Semi - confirmation came from Moscow where Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told Western correspondents that "nothing good" will come from the French move. He said ships were using the canal and the situation was "normal."

Gromyko, in a talk with foreign correspondents at a Norwegian Embassy reception, declined to answer a question on whether Israel had freedom of passage through the canal and said "Israel is playing a very bad role in the Mideastern situation."

The state - controlled Cairo Radio warned Israel that any attempt to send a test ship through the Suez Canal would be regarded as aggression and that "volunteers" from all over the world would rush to Egypt's aid.

Negro 'Pilgrimage' in Civil Rights Appeal

WASHINGTON (UP)—Negro leader Roy Wilkins said today the big Negro "pilgrimage" to Washington should have impressed President Eisenhower with the need for action in the civil rights field.

Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and pilgrimage co-chairman, said the "Prayer Pilgrimage For Freedom" held at the Lincoln Memorial Friday was "the most significant meeting ever held in the field of civil rights."

The orderly mass meeting, attended by thousands of Negroes and a few whites from all sections of the nation, appealed to both Eisenhower and Congress for civil rights action.

Sponsors of the pilgrimage successfully kept Communists from demonstrating at the mass meeting and barred them from the speakers platform. The Reds had tried to infiltrate the pilgrimage to exploit it for propaganda purposes.

But top Communists were on hand even though uninvited. Among those spotted in the crowd were Eugene Dennis, New York, the top party leader; James Jackson, New York Negro, member of the national committee; Simon W. Gerson, New York, top party spokesman; Benjamin Davis, Negro, member of the national committee; James Ford, Negro, once the party's candidate for vice president; Roosevelt Ward of the Communist Daily Worker; William J. Patterson, a New York Negro; and Carl Winter, Michigan leader.

Paul Robeson, Negro singer who has been associated with many Communist activities, also was there but was not on the program.

Pilgrimage leaders specifically rejected any Communist aid in the fight for civil rights.

There was a dispute over the number of persons who turned out for the three-hour session at the marble memorial. U.S. park police estimated the crowd at 15,000 while pilgrimage officials put it at 27,000. Both figures were far short of the 50,000 which had been predicted.

Fayette County Is Entering Second Phase of School Building Program

Fayette County is entering its second phase in a major school building program which has called for an outlay of approximately 15 million dollars.

Additions at Bellmar High School and Marion Junior High School, both members of the Bellmarette Joint District, are included in those schools about to start construction work.

A summary of the school projects was completed yesterday by A. J. McMullen, county superintendent of schools.

From 1950 to September, 1956, the program in Fayette County saw 15 projects completed at a cost of $7,630,712.

Under construction are two more major school projects entailing an expenditure of $1,568,156.

Work is expected to be started this summer or fall on seven other large school projects at a total cost of approximately $6,000,000.

In addition, McMullen said applications are on file in Harrisburg for four additional school building projects. Their most has been estimated at 1½ million dollars.

Fayette County's school enrollment is officially listed at 37,366.

"The buildings on which construction will move soon constitute so far our biggest bloc of new buildings, and work should start within a comparatively short time," McMullen said, adding:

"In addition, we need a number of other projects and progress is being made on this group. We are meeting with a number of school districts in need of new buildings and work is being done on the financial picture and planning to meet their needs."

McMullen and his staff have completed a detailed summary of the entire school building program in the county. Compared with programs in other counties in the state, Fayette County is sharing top rank today.

Projects completed, the nature and costs, and the date of completion follow:

These projects were completed at a cost of $7,630,712.

Under construction:

Fine's Fight; Westmoreland County Battle Will Highlight Primaries

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The return of former Gov. John S. Fine to the political arena and the fight for reelection by Judge Joseph L. Kun of Philadelphia despite his rejection by the city's lawyers will highlight the judgeship elections at the May 21 primaries.

The former governor has tossed his hat into the ring with 10 other candidates seeking four judgeships in Luzerne County and three on the Common Pleas bench and one in Orphans Court.

Although Fine has filed on both the Republican and Democratic tickets for one of the Common Pleas posts, he has the backing of neither organization. Political observers predict a stiff battle with Fine's political astuteness pitted against the organizations.

The GOP organization, under Pete Clark, the man who led the upset of Fine two years ago, has endorsed the three Common Pleas Court judges on the sitting judge principle, even though one is a Democrat. The Democrats, under Dr. John Doris, have endorsed the three Common Pleas judges and Orphans Court Judge Arthur McGuire, who was appointed recently. The GOP is running Paul Selecky of Glen Lyon, former state American Legion commander, against McGuire.

Philadelphia Judges

In Philadelphia, there are 15 judgeships at stake, including 11 in Common Pleas Courts, three in Municipal Court and one in Orphans Court but Judge Kun is the only judicial candidate without bipartisan backing. All the others were endorsed by both parties on the sitting judge basis.

The elderly Kun's lack of support was due to opposition by the city's lawyers and labor unions. The Philadelphia Bar Association held a plebiscite on the qualifications of all sitting judges and only Kun was disapproved. The lawyers turned him down by a 2-to-1 vote.

The Democratic Party immediately slated Congressman Earl Chudoff to oppose him. The Republican organization backed Judge Kun as a "sitting judge" despite the Bar Association's interpretation that he does not qualify for that designation. However, five candidates filed against him on the Republican ballot while three names were on the Democratic list.

In Western Pennsylvania, the hottest judicial contest was for the two seats on the Westmoreland County Common Pleas bench with six candidates in the race, all cross-filed.

Joseph M. Loughran, an assistant district attorney for 15 years, is making a vigorous fight to upset the Democratic organization's choice, District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco and incumbent Edward G. Bauer.

The county's long standing custom of elevating the district attorney to the bench has been broken only in 1937 and Loughran is making an aggressive bid to make 1957 the second exception. The jut-jawed veteran of political infighting has taken on the powerful Democratic organization headed by County Detective Chief Arthur (Buddy) Turner.

Loughran boiled the political waters in the Democratic-dominated county by drawing support of veteran Democratic powers Howard Bud Thomas, sheriff, and Jessie Smith McCormick, recorder of deeds. Loughran promised, that if elected, his first act would be to summon a special grand jury to investigate the activities of Turner and his "machine."

Allegheny County

In Allegheny County, the judicial candidates have provided about the only show of spirit in a generally lethargic campaign. Fourteen candidates are seeking nominations for the six Common Pleas posts open and all but two are running on both ballots.

The four judges seeking reelection, Henry D. Ellengoben, A. Marshall Thompson, Harry D. Montgomery and John J. Kennedy, have won "sitting judge" endorsement of the Democratic organization, both factions of the split GOP and the majority of the county bar association.

Homer Brown and William F. Cercone, both serving by appointment, have been backed by the Democratic organization but the GOP county chairman and vice chairman have endorsed former Assemblyman Harry M. Jones and Robert F. Stokes Jr.

Methodist Conference to Admit Negro Churches

Vote Unanimous At Meeting In Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP) — The Pittsburgh Conference of the Methodist Church has voted unanimously to admit Negro churches.

By a 286-0 vote, the 132nd annual meeting Friday ratified constitutional amendments permitting abolition of separate jurisdiction for Negro Churches. The amendments allow Negro churches to join any of the denomination's conferences by a two-thirds vote of the congregation and the conference involved.

Dr. W. Sproule Boyd, minister at the Franklin Street Methodist Church, Johnstown, said the amendments "simply recognize the fact that existence of a separate Negro jurisdiction was a form of segregation and ought to go."

Dr. Boyd led the integration movement at the 1956 general conference at Minneapolis.

"This program provides a means for Negro churches to join the 110 conferences as they wish until the Central Jurisdiction (Negro) ultimately ceases to exist by a process of evolution rather than revolution," he said.

In other business the delegates —representing 166,731 members of 462 churches in southwestern Pennsylvania and northern West Virginia—adopted a $791,000 budget for 1957.

Dr. E. J. Keifer, Arnold, Pa., reported total conference receipts amounted to $1,131,678, of which $437,119 came from regular benevolences, an increase of 8.7 per cent over the year before.

The conference is scheduled today to hear reports from the Pennsylvania Council of Churches, Methodist Youth Fellowship and Young Adult Fellowship. An address will be given by Dr. A.P. Weaver, minister of the Emery Methodist Church, Pittsburgh.

Swinda Waldmann Wins Art Award

Swinda Waldmann, who came an exchange student to the Monessen High School, won honorable mention for her entry in the 30th annual national competition for small sculptures in white soap.

She has received $25 for her entry, "Mother and Child".

There were 84 prizes given to students in 23 states.

Miss Waldmann prepared her entry under the direction of her art teacher, Miss Mary Breza, along with about 25 other students. A display of the projects was presented at the High School before they were entered in the contest.

weeping husband. Both then climbed into the ambulance along with Kris, to accompany the faintly smiling boy to the hospital.

An ambulance attendant held an oxygen mask over the boy's face during the 15-mile trip to the hospital. At the hospital, he was placed in an oxygen tent.

Placed on a strict liquid diet, young Benny was given tea and, later ginger ale, but no solids. X-rays were to be taken later in the day.

When hours had passed without any sound from the well shaft, doctors and most others at the scene despaired of the boy's survival. Not a whimper had been heard since 10 p.m., Thursday an hour and a half after the child tumbled into the hole while playing with a companion. And the last physical contact had been made at 10:30 p.m. when Benny feebly grasped, then lost, a hook lowered into the hole by firemen.

Efforts Rewarded

But the dogged efforts of scores of rescuers, many of whom worked though on the verge of physical exhaustion, continued.

Few, if any, of the rescuers or spectators believed that the boy was alive when word reached the surface that Sam Woodson, a wiry construction worker, had gotten to the point where Benny had been wedged for 23 hours.

Followed by a second worker, Woodson, the father of an 11-year-old girl, climaxed 22 hours of digging—by human hands, shovels and a huge auger—when he crawled the final few feet of a lateral tunnel and crumbled the wall of the well pit.

Pittsburgh, Scranton To Nominate Mayors

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Voters of Pittsburgh and Scranton, along with those of 21 third class cities in the state, will nominate candidates for mayor in Tuesday's primary elections.

At Pittsburgh, Mayor David L. Lawrence, now serving an unprecedented third term, faced only token opposition in the Democratic balloting and appeared headed for election to another four years in the November general voting because that is the way the city's registration lies.

But a split in the Republican forces provided a political side show in the primary campaigning. GOP Chairmen and vice chairmen of the city's 32 wards endorsed for mayor Joseph A. McArdle, 53-year-old insurance broker who served in the state General Assembly, Congress, and Pittsburgh City Council as a Democrat before breaking with Lawrence and bolting to the Republicans.

A GOP faction, whose members proclaim themselves the "real Republicans," is fighting to nominate John Drew, 42, who served three years as a judge of Common Pleas Court from 1951 to 1954 by appointment. His supporters, who are backing a full slate of candidates, are making a determined effort to take over control of the oft-divided Republican party in Allegheny County.

Moritz vs Lawrence

Lawrence's only opposition in the Democratic balloting comes from Theodore L. Moritz, one-time congressman and in the early 1930s secretary to single-taxer Mayor William N. McNair. Moritz' chances are regarded as remote at best.

At scandal-rocked Scranton, observers said disclosures of labor racketeering in the community will have little effect on the primary voting, but may become an issue in November.

Mayor James T. Hanlon, whose name has figured in the investigation by the Senate Rackets Committee, seeks the Democratic nomination for re-election. He is opposed by Edward Levelle, a state capitol policeman who is virtually a political unknown.

Battling for the nomination to run against Scanlon are Daniel M. Beynon, railroad switchman and building contractor; E. Evans, a real estate and insurance broker, and Harry A. Lewis, accountant and former city councilman. The Republican organization supported Lewis.

Corcoran Seeks Re-Election

Beaver Falls: Mayor Edward C. Corcoran, who seeks the Democratic nomination for re-election, is opposed by City Councilman George H. White, City Democratic Chairman John A. Buksa, and long-time Democratic Committeeman George K. Alderson. The race looms as close. On the Republican side, the contest is among George H. Zeller, a councilman for 14 years until his defeat two years ago; Joseph Tronzo, a sports editor, and Roy J. Davidson, a leader in volunteer firemen's circles.

Jeannette: Mayor Franki Binda, who is winding up his second term, is seeking the Democratic nomination for re-election. His strongest opponent is Edward A. Wolfe, a clothing salesman active in veterans affairs. The only name on the Republican ballot is that of Braheem J. Braheem, a jewelry salesman, but Edward Ferris, an automobile salesman, and Binda both are conducting sticker campaigns in effort to capture the nomination.

Greensburg: Acting Mayor Andrew J. Hudock, appointed by Westmoreland County court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Robert L. Potts, is stepping out. Campaigning for the Republican nomination for the office are Homer R. Ruffner, councilman and city GOP chairman; Maurice Barnhart, a school director, and George E. Berry Jr., an attorney. DeWeese B. Armbrust, is unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

Blank GOP Ballot

Monessen: The Republican primary ballot for city offices will be blank. No one filed a nominating petition. On the Democratic side, Mayor Hugo J. Parente is seeking the nomination for a fourth term and is opposed by John R. Stieska.

Connellsville: Abe I. Daniels, Republican, is stepping down after 14 years as mayor. Endorsed by the GOP organization for nomination is Dr. J. Harold Dull, a dentist. He is opposed by James H. Luckey, a former councilman who was handily beaten by Daniels four years ago. Candidates for the Democratic nomination are Robert P. McLuckey, a school official, and Ralph M. Collins, hotel proprietor.

Armed Forces Day Observed in Nation

WASHINGTON (UP) — America's armed might passed in review before millions at home and abroad today, with the forces proudly unveiling their newest push-button weapons and proclaiming their ability to defeat any enemy.

Guided missiles highlighted the annual observance of Armed Forces Day, with its "Power For Peace" theme, more than ever before. The people got their first look at a flock of amazing new "birds" designed to blast enemy bombers from the sky and pulverize ground targets.

Political overtones, too, crept into the eighth annual celebration dedicated to U.S. fighting men. Military speechmakers warned an economy-bent Congress against defense budget slashes and went after public support for higher pay for skilled men handling atomic-age weapons.

Urged by President Eisenhower to honor their 2,800,000 men and women in uniform, Americans flocked to parades and jammed some 2,800 camps, airports, seaports and other installations holding "open house" here and overseas.

The nation's premier exhibition of military strength was staged at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md., where the Army, Navy and Air Force had 16 types of missiles — the largest number ever — an estimated 650,000 persons were expected to cram the base today and Sunday.

Missiles removed from secrecy were the Air Force's Bomarc long-range interceptor, the Army's Nike-Hercules antiaircraft weapon with atomic warhead, the Air Force's Rascal which jet bombers can launch against distant targets and the Army's LaCrosse for close support of infantry.

The 'Turn' System

THE PEOPLE of Westmoreland County are indebted to Attorney David H. Weiss of Monessen for his frank explanation of the system by which the county's judges are chosen. According to Mr. Weiss, who should know, the system is this simple:

"You wait your turn."

Whether Mr. Weiss was trying to do so or not, he has crystallized in the most eloquent terms the central issue of this primary election in Westmoreland County.

The voters have a chance now to say how they want it. Do they want to be able to choose in the free American way from among candidates who are willing to submit their qualifications and records? Or are they satisfied to have judges whose chief qualification is that they "waited their turn" in a machine which grinds out judges with all the discrimination a butcher uses in grinding out sausages?

The courthouse machine has two candidates in this primary. One is Judge Edward G. Bauer, whose "turn" came 10 years ago and who is a candidate for reelection. He has been as serviceable a judge as any political machine could ask.

The other machine candidate is District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco, who has done literally nothing in eight years as district attorney but wait patiently for his "turn" to be a judge.

Those voters who think the "turn" system is a good one will, of course, vote for Judge Bauer and Mr. Sculco.

But those who think a free people can do better than this will reject Judge Bauer and Mr. Sculco and will choose instead from the other four lawyers who have been willing to defy the "turn" system and submit their own qualifications. They are: Joseph M. Loughran, James L. McWherter, Avra N. Pershing Jr. and Robert H. Rial.

That's the issue in Westmoreland County next Tuesday.

Recipe for Tragedy

A RECIPE for tragedy: Put two boys of 17 in a sports car. Let them roam the highways in the wee hours of the morning. The result is guaranteed if the recipe is repeated often enough.

Monessen knows that now. One of the boys is in a coffin, the other in a hospital seriously injured. Two homes are plunged into grief, shared by schoolmates, teachers, neighbors and townspeople.

We find ourselves wondering: Will this be enough to stop the hot-rodding which has become habitual, even on city streets? Will it be enough to make parents realize that a driver's license does not make a child any less a child? Will it be enough to put some spine into half-hearted police efforts to stop speeding by child drivers? Will it force parents and school authorities into close cooperation to teach children what they must know before they can use highways and automobiles properly?

We must hope the answer is yes to all these questions. If it isn't, we had better prepare ourselves for more screeching accidents, more [illegible] more grieving homes, more [illegible] tragedy. The recipe is sure-fire.

It seems to us they could only [illegible] voting for a Democratic [illegible] instead of [illegible] for Republican candidates [illegible] some [illegible] reason.

[illegible] any other American city, [illegible] two-party system if it is to [illegible] possible government. And we [illegible] confidence in the basic good sense [illegible] to think that eventually the two-party system will return. Budget Cuts Can Mean War Later

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his grandson.)

By DREW PEARSON
Washington, D. C.
Friday, May 17

Dear Joe,

This is your birthday. You are three years old — an age when the world lies at your feet. I watched you last week scooting around on your toy tractor; and making all the girls in my office stop their work — just because of you. You will never be three again. But today you are master of the world.

Someday, many years from now, when you read this letter, you will understand what I mean. You will know how little a man is master of his fate as he grows older, how lucky he is to be master of a garden when he is young.

It's about three in the morning. I couldnt sleep for thinking of the problems of the world; and got up to look down at the Potomac, so still and peaceful under the moon. On the river is a fishing boat, still angling for catfish with the help of a light. Over on the Virginia shore, the trees stand out in silhouette in the moonlight. It's so still that you can hear the water rippling against the rocks as it rushes on and on to the Chesapeake and the sea.

The Potomac was not always so still and peaceful. In the days of your great-great-grandfather Joseph Medill, for whom you were partly named, Johnny Rebs lurked behind those trees on the Virginia side; while sharpened saplings pointed down from the Maryland side where the fishing boat now angles for catfish, to keep the Rebs from crossing.

Those were the days when your great-great-grandfather, who founded the Chicago Tribune, was an adviser to Lincoln, and when out countrymen were foolish enough to go to war against each other.

Drift Toward War

We are more sensible now. But what sometimes keeps me awake at night is that I can detect an almost imperceptible drift in this country right now toward war — a world war.

It's a drift that you can't do anything about. You are three years old. But I should be able to do something about it. I am older. And I have seen two cruel and bloody wars engulf the world. I know that the drift which begins now may mean that 15 years from now you will go out to fight a war which you don't understand, didn't cause, and shouldn't be sacrificed for.

Yet, if the present drift continues, you probably will.

For wars today don't begin overnight. They begin 10 or 15 years before they break. And they are caused by man's inertia, man's greed, and man's unwillingness to sacrifice a little of his worldly goods before it's too late and he has to sacrifice with his life.

What I detect now in Washington and in the nation is the same let-the-other-fellow-go-hang attitude that ruled American thinking in those days between World War I and the drift to World War II.

Those were days when people talked about "getting back to normalcy," when the stock market was more important than the League of Nations, when investments abroad were more important than peace abroad; when, more than anything else, people were just plain bored with foreign affairs and wished that all the disagreeable, trouble-making people in the world would go jump in the ocean.

How Wars Are Bred

That's the kind of atmosphere in which wars are bred, and that's the kind of atmosphere which exists today. The shout and clamor for economy in Congress is exactly like the shout and clamor in Congress against the League of Nations and the World Court against world cooperation between World War I and World War II.

It's easy to get people lined up against this type of thing. And the same kind of people lining up now, when so often a short time after we fought a war to end war" and went to "make the world safe for democracy."

I was on a few short years ago — so short it seems like yesterday — that the nation was at a supreme pitch of patriotism after Pearl Harbor and your daddy was marching off with the Marines. We were united then. It was only a short time ago that we hailed the founding of the United Nations. We were united behind it too.

Now we are pulling apart. We are disunited, blase, disinterested, bored — because it's easy to unite in time of war; hard to unite in time of peace. There are no bands playing as we march down the road to peace.

But then the people who are shouting for lower taxes now won't have to go off and fight wars. They are too old.

The people who will fight the war brought on by the tax-reducers of today will be the little boys like you who scoot around on toy tractors today not knowing what is in store for them in the future.

Meanwhile, and until you can understand this letter, please ask your mother to bring you to see me again very soon.

Citizen's Choice

From Washington—

The President and the Budget

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

The success — or failure — of President Eisenhower's appeals to the country to help him rescue most of his budget from being radically slashed will not be evident for several weeks.

Mr. Drummond

The reason is that this is a decisive, deadly, earnest, win-or-lose battle that will be paid off only in votes in Congress for or against the President's principal appropriation requests.

Mr. Eisenhower is not going to the country just to prove how popular he is or just to show how many letters he can get his vast audience to write to congressmen.

He is openly calling for a showdown test of his political prestige and his political power.

He is, in effect, saying to Congress: "After I have explained the case for my budget fully and forcefully, you will want to support it substantially, not cut it substantially."

Politically Risky

This is politically riskful, more riskful than if Mr. Eisenhower had acted earlier. But Mr. Eisenhower had no other choice than to call upon the fullest resources of the presidency on an issue that goes to the heart of his policies. To fail to do so would be to abdicate his leadership and do violence to his deepest convictions as to what is necessary for the country.

The first of Mr. Eisenhower's two major speeches helps to put the issues in perspective and focus upon the central questions around which public opinion will have to crystallize if he is to win. Briefly his case is this:

1 — The budget can be trimmed; any budget can be trimmed. The President has suggested to Congress how by some cut-backs and deferments it can be reduced by $1.8 billion.

2 — The danger to the nation is not the remaining $70 billion 1956-'58 budget which, because of the growth of the economy, the expanded population and the rise in wages and profits after taxes, is no greater strain than any budget of the past six years.

Must Check Spending

The real danger would be failure to arrest during the next several years a rise in federal spending which would absorb all available tax revenue generated by economic growth.

3 — How can that danger be averted?

In the view of the President, in the world as it is today, the present budget can be radically reduced in only two ways: (a) by slashing security expenditures; (b) by dropping or cutting back domestic services "which the people operating through Congress have stated they want the federal government to perform."

If such immediate reductions are unwise, does the President see no way of reducing substantially the level of federal spending?

He does see a way. But his conviction is that a large immediate cut would destroy the prospect of a meaningful cut later, that it is safe to cut radically only when America and the free world are more secure from the peril of the cold war.

He is appealing to Congress not to strike from his hands the essential means of waging the peace — defense, mutual security, economic aid, U.S.I.A., and an adequately manned State Department — which is exactly where Congress has proposed to cut most.

Cuts Risk War

To make such cuts, he holds, would risk war, save a little money temporarily and lose all hope of bringing about conditions which would justify solid reductions later.

If Mr. Eisenhower is to win this Battle of the Budget he will have to be willing to expend some of his popularity and utilize his fullest prestige. I would expect that the majority of Americans would want to trust the President's judgment in the circumstances.

But he faces two formidable hurdles: the opposition of many Republican congressmen who never wanted Mr. Eisenhower as leader of their party and the opposition of many Democratic congressmen who, with elections in the offing, are frantically eager to identify themselves as the party of economy and low spending.

The end is not yet in sight.

Notes and Comment—

Lee Was a Turncoat, Not a Great Patriot

By HARRY R. PORE, Jr.

That was a durable subject which President Eisenhower and Viscount Montgomery raised as they meandered over the battlefield at Gettysburg last weekend.

Students of military history have been arguing about Gettysburg ever since the day after the battle when General Meade allowed General Lee to lead his weary and beaten remnants back across the Potomac.

Ike and Monty were just projecting the opinions of most students of the battle when they said that Meade and Lee probably deserved to be "sacked" on professional grounds. Both had made serious errors.

But the controlling fact which President Lincoln, the Union commander-in-chief, and Jeff Davis, the Confederate president, had to consider was that Meade and Lee unquestionably were the best men they had left.

Meade was the last in a long succession of commanders of the Army of the Potomac, none of whom had satisfied Lincoln. And Meade had taken command only two days before the clash at Gettysburg.

Lee's record had been generally good with even some flashes of brilliancy. And while he had some lieutenants who were extraordinarily good in their specialties, none had displayed the overall competence required for supreme command.

Lee as a Hero

What interested me most, however, in the reaction to the Eisenhower-Montgomery comments is continued acceptance of General Lee as a national hero. Even the President, when the matter was raised at his press conference last Wednesday, felt obliged to align himself with the idolators of Lee. He called Lee one of "about the four top Americans of the past", the others being Benjamin Franklin, Washington and Lincoln.

This acceptance of Lee as a great American has always bothered me.

I will not argue that Lee did not have many of the qualities of greatness. Or that he was not a most attractive personality, deserving of the detailed biographical study that has been expended on him. And aside from the mistakes at Gettysburg, he was a skilful general. He was also a tragic and pitiable figure.

But I have to insist that he fell short of being a great American.

Lee — and we may as well be blunt while we are at it — was a turncoat. He had accepted appointment to West Point and received a free training there for a career as an officer of the U. S. Army.

He accepted appointment as an officer, and in so doing swore to protect and defend the country he was trained to serve. This was a sacred, irrevocable covenant, made in the name of God.

Had Another Obligation

But when Lee was called up to act in compliance with this obligation and protect and defend the country, he suddenly found that he had a conflicting and overriding obligation to join the Commonwealth of Virginia in an effort to dismember the United States.

Now let's grant that Lee was doing what his conscience told him to do and that he thought he was acting with personal honor.

But so gross were his misconceptions of both duty and honor, that I do not for the life of me see how any just appraisal can hold that he was a great American. He was a great rebel, perhaps, but he was not a great American, and the two, in the context of civil war, cannot be the same.

It seems to me a monstrous disservice to our children to teach them that a man can do what Lee did to his country and yet go into the history books as the equal of our great patriots. How can Mr. Eisenhower possibly regard Lee's contribution to our country as being on a par with the contributions of Franklin, Washington and Lincoln? For if Lee had succeeded in the great work of his life, he would literally have ended what these other men strove so mightily to create and preserve.

A more accurate comparison would be to equate the acts of Lee with those of Benedict Arnold or Alger Hiss. To be sure, Lee's treachery was committed openly and theirs surreptitiously. But the damage for which Lee was responsible was of infinitely greater consequence than that attributable to Arnold or Hiss.

It is right that time should heal human wounds, and re-fighting the issues of the Civil War seems to me a fruitless occupation. But I do not think we should let sentimentality and generosity obscure the facts of history, and those Americans who revere Robert E. Lee as a great patriot either ignore the facts or are engaging in a form of polite hypocrisy which I find quite distasteful.

Warblers Pass Thru' On Way to North

By JOHN H. DAY

During May the tiny wood warblers pass through in the migration parade to their nesting grounds farther north. Some of them to be sure, nest right here with us as summer residents. But the majority visit with us for a week or two, then move on to the Canadian bush country, or to the dark northern forests, where they slay billions of "no-see-ums" and black flies while rearing their offspring. They move northward in great migration waves. One day the woods and thickets and orchards will be alive with the colorful creatures. The next day they have gone on and the countryman meets only the usual feathered standbyes.

These little fellows are the "butterflies" of the bird world, some of them so gorgeously colored as to be breath-taking in their beauty. With one or two exceptions they are all much smaller than the common house sparrow. There are about 40 varieties. Rare indeed is the countryman who can name a dozen on sight or rarer still is the outdoorsman who can pin down a dozen by just hearing their song.

In many years of haunting woodland paths and following enchanted byways across the hills I have made the acquaintance of a good number of these little-known travelers. There are just as many more I have never identified. Usually on a good warbler day I'm tied down at a desk, negotiating contracts or dictating correspondence. This is not at all helpful in becoming acquainted with the shy, exotic warbler, our least known and perhaps most beneficial feathered citizens.

Rain Shortens Search

I promised myself a day on the trail of the tiny migrants and at the weekend took to the woods bright and early, but the day was overcast and breezy, and a driving rain washed out the game at noon. Even so I had eight of the little fellows in the glass in fairly good light, and encountered the rather rare summer tanager and a host of lesser personages of the bird world.

I heard the first performer on the day's list before I threw back the covers and faced the morning. He was bustling about in the apple trees behind the house, his breakfast earned while I still lay slothfully abed. Most folks know him as the wild canary or summer yellow-bird. He spends every summer with us, last year nesting in an apple tree at the edge of our front lawn. His cheerful song and confiding manner endear the yellow warbler to all who know him. Look closely and you can see the reddish stitching on his vest.

I heard the next one also before I saw him and knew him by his familiar "witchery" song. This was the Maryland yellow-throat, very common summer resident, a lover of marshy edgings and brushy stream sides. The yellow-throat has an oversize curiosity bump, and if you wait long enough he'll come out to inspect you. If you don't know him you'll be surprised at his trim costume with the black mask over his eyes.

A very common summer resident in my hiking bailiwick is the cerulean warbler, one of the tiniest of the clan. He stays high in the tree tops and rarely does the countryman get a glimpse of the azure blue of his back. His buzzy singing is quite characteristic, and is almost certain to be heard in any heavily wooded area. I followed one about in the trees with the glass until I got a good look at the black ring which crosses the white of his upper breast.

Warblers Identified

After the rain I walked through a stand of tall pines, on the chance some of the migrants might be feeding there. A group of rather large birds, as big as sparrows, moved about actively high up in the dripping twigs. One of the males sang a sibilant sort of "teesi, teesi, teesi" song. The light was bad and the soggy drip from the soaked branches didn't help. I took a stance in an open area and waited until the birds fed through to the tree above me. Then I got a break in the light and pinned them down as bay-breasted warblers, true migrants who will nest in the northern spruce forests.

Feeding with the bay-breasts were some myrtle warblers, tardy travelers who usually pass through in late April. The yellow spot on the lower back was unmistakable. I heard a Kentucky warbler singing in a wooded ravine and detoured long enough to get a glimpse of his black sideburns. A yellow-breasted chat struck up his crazy assortment of so-called singing noises, and let me see him once as he made an "operatic" leap above the briar tangles he has staked out as summer quarters.

ON THE BALL

By ALLEN KLINE

Televise Preakness Stakes Today

The 81st running of the Preakness Stakes will be televised today beginning at 5.30 p. m. . . . Also scheduled for the magic screen is the Pirate-Milwaukee game starting at 2:30 p. m. . . . Reportedly Pitt has the inside track in landing Centerville High's brilliant footballer Red Worrell. As a matter of fact, Red would have probably thrown in long ago with the Panthers had it not been for family considerations . . . Since 1938, Charleroi High has won the valley baseball title no less than ten times. California has earned the crown on five occasions, while Monongahela and Brownsville won it twice. Donora finished first once . . . Unhappily Monessen High has never won a valley title since the league was reorganized back in '38. The Hounds got as far as a playoff once.

* * *

One of the most interested spectators at Donora High track meets this season is football coach Jim Russell. And no wonder! His three probable running backs next season are dash stars Angelo Dabiero, Tom Urbanik and Tom Watson. If the Dragons develop any sort of a line, they're going to be mighty tough to handle in the fall . . . Henry Studnicki, the former all-around athlete at Bellmar, is with Fayette City in the Mon Valley League again this season. He'll receive his teacher's certificate soon . . . Incidentally Studnicki did his student teaching in Monessen.

* * *

Pottios Plans to Stay in Shape

Myron Pottios, the Charleroi bull-dozer who has finally decided on Notre Dame, will play for Van Voorhis in the Mon Valley League this season. He also plans to work for a construction company during the summer . . . Jim Burzio, the Jeannette tackle who kicked the winning field goal against Charleroi in the WPIAL title football game, has decided to accept a scholarship to Houston. No less than eight members of the Jayhawk squad will receive college scholarships in exchange for their football talent . . . For the first time in years, McKeesport High has not won the Section 16 baseball title. The honor this year went to Munhall.

* * *

At least Monessen's "nationality problem" doesn't spill over into sports. In a recent softball game between Italian Hall and the Cro-Ams, these names appeared in the 'Italian' lineup: Galaski, Frew, Baciak, Mayernick and Quinn. On the other hand, the Cro-Ams were represented by Stancato, Pallini, Crisi and Lattanzio among others . . . The word is out that Pitt has a pretty attractive group of football prospects ready to enroll this fall. Coach John Michelosen and his popular assistant Jack Wiley have patched things up in a hurry with WPIAL coaches and they'll be getting most of the good boys from now on. Which is as it should be.

* * *

Kurey, Baker Waste No Time

Joe Kurey and Jim Baker wasted no time in putting Monessen High on the tennis map. The two junior stars required only one season of scholastic competition to prime them for a successful assault on the WPIAL doubles crown. They'll appear in the PIAA tournament next weekend at Penn State . . . Incidentally Kurey merits an extra pat on the back for his unselfish gesture. Originally he was to appear in both the singles and doubles play of the WPIAL Tournament. However when officials ruled that he'd have to pick one or the other, he decided to stay with his pal, Baker. And the decision proved a wise one indeed . . . Since both Kurey and Baker will be back next season, more tennis titles just might be in store for the Greyhounds.

Today's Sports Parade —

Old Injury Keeps Rookie with Brooks

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

Because he stepped in a hole and hurt himself two years ago Sandy Koufax is pitching for Brooklyn today instead of being in the minor leagues.

Sandy stumbled in the spring of 1955 and spent a month on the disabled list. Under baseball's bonus rule, he had to spend two years with the parent team before he could be sent to the minors for seasoning. But the month he spent on the disabled list didn't count.

Ticketed For Montreal

This spring he was ticketed for Montreal. But Brooklyn had to keep him a month to use up the two years. On the day he was free to be sent to the minors, Koufax pitched a 13-strikeout 4-hitter to beat the Cubs. That gave him 35 strikeouts in 27 innings pitched and a fine 1.33 earned run average which kept him with the club.

Some observers are betting, however, that Sandy will be back in the minors before the season ends. They theorize that he has nothing but a fast ball and needs to learn too much about pitching to stay in the majors as of now.

Time trials for the Indianapolis 500 start today and Freddie Agabashian, attempting to qualify for the 12th straight year, predicts that it will take a new record of 147 miles an hour to grab the pole. Most of the other veterans figure it will take better than 140 to get any of the 33 starting spots.

Old Man's Shoes

Doug Ford Jr., 12-year-old son of the Masters champion, is figuring on filling his old man's shoes. Young Doug, who completed his first round at six, has been in the 80s already and figures to carry on a family pro tradition started by his grandpappy. Provided there's a Ford in the fairway future, too.

Glen (Fireball) Roberts, who won the Rebel 300 stock car race at Darlington, S.C., didn't get his nickname from the way he drives. He picked up that tag as a University of Florida fast ball pitcher. But it still fits.

Here Are Week's Ump Assignment

Here are the umpire assignments for next week's games in the Allenport Softball League:

Monday: Alessio and Trilli at field one; Lubecki and Gaudio at field two.

Tuesday: Lubecki and Rue at field one; R. DiBiaso and Kovalich at field two.

Thursday: Lipnicky and Fedarko at field one.

Friday: J. DiBiaso and Rue at field one; Kovalich and August at field two.

Ozarks Stopped by Charleroi, 12-6

Brownsville Hi Romps, 7-0

Charleroi Nine Is Eliminated

Brownsville High's Section 18 baseball champions advanced in the WPIAL Tournament yesterday with a surprisingly easy 7-0 win over Charleroi, the Section 17 king.

Bob Chuey, a junior, pitched a four-hitter to pace the Brownsville victory. He also collected a double and two singles to bat in a pair of runs himself.

His mound opponent, Carl Witmyer, suffered his first loss of the season. However he was handicapped by five Cougar errors.

Witmyer yielded just five hits and tried to help his own cause with a single and double.

The Brownies scored three runs in the fourth inning. Chuey opened with a double and went to third on Don Mains single. A balk permitted Chuey to score and Mains later tallied on an error. Earl Brown's single sent another tally across.

Score Two More

In the fifth, singles by Bernie Hovan and Chuey, coupled with an error and hit-batter, accounted for two more runs.

Brownsville iced the game with a pair in the seventh on two errors, a sacrifice and single by Hovan.

Charleroi's only real scoring threat came in the fourth inning when they loaded the bases with two out. Chuey then fanned John Thomas to end the threat.

Score by innings

Charleroi	000	000	0—0	4	5

WPIAL TENNIS CHAMPIONS — Here is the Monessen High tennis team which won the 1957 WPIAL doubles title at the Mt. Lebanon courts on Thursday. Joe Kurey, left, and Jim Baker, right, talk over their triumph, with their coach, Miss Antoinette Valentine. The boys both juniors, will now compete in the state-wide tournament at Penn State University next weekend.

Myfords Win Behind Wily Tony Turcaso

Look out for those Myfords in the City Softball League. They have veteran pitcher Tony Turcaso on their side!

Last night Turcaso threw a two-hitter at ULBA as his teammates pounded out a 15-0 victory at City Park.

The great pitching performance was very significant. It proved that Turcaso is as good as ever.

The veteran hurler missed all of last season because of an injury. Yesterday he fanned seven and was in complete control all the way.

Bud Beeler led the winners at bat with three hits including a triple. P. Pfeister was top man for ULBA with a pair of hits.

Ozark Game Off

The Monessen Ozarks-Yukon game — tentatively scheduled for this evening at Ninth Street Park — has been cancelled.

Visitors Score Seven Runs in Big 4th Inning

Charleroi smashed the Monessen Ozarks from the undefeated ranks last night with a 12-6 win at Ninth Street Park.

Darkness mercifully halted the Mon Valley League onslaught after five innings.

The Ozarks' best pitcher — Bill Mitnick — was the victim of the beating. A couple of untimely errors got him into hot water in the fourth inning when the visitors paraded seven runs across home plate.

A couple of Monessen products — Nick Mahalko and Walt Cieply — were the leading villains, as far as the Ozarks were concerned. Mahalko stroked a two-run homer while Cieply singled with the sacks loaded.

To make matters worse, the Ozarks hard-hitting centerfielder, Ron Danko, twisted his ankle and may miss a couple of games.

Open Scoring

Charleroi opened the scoring in the second inning when Carmen Cappelli singled and Jim Lenhart followed with another safety. Larry Papini singled home Capelli. Cieply's grounder to deep short was good for an infield hit to load the sacks. An error at that point permitted two runs to score.

The Ozarks came right back. Mel Clickovich singled and Pappy Johnson followed with a home run over the right centerfield fence. George Stark singled and Carl Crawley slammed a homer over the scoreboard.

That set the stage for the nightmarish fourth inning. Lenhart, who had three hits for the night, opened with a single. Fred Briggs doubled and Papini walked to load the sacks. Cieply doubled in two runs and another scored when the ball was booted in the outfield. George Zuraw singled home Cieply. Mahalko then followed with a homer over the left field fence which chased Mitnick.

Keep Going

Lazzari kept things going with a single. He moved around on a couple of errors and then stole home. Before the inning was over, Lenhart collected another hit but it proved harmless for a change.

Charleroi tacked on two more runs in the fifth on two walks, two errors and singles by Zuraw and Roy Barli.

In their half of the fifth, the Ozarks picked up two tallies. Tom Rotheram walked and Bob Mastracci doubled him home. Neil Hill then singled in Mastracci.

Midget League Meets Tomorrow

A very important meeting of the Monessen Midget Football League will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the Ravens Club.

At that time, the public phase of the current fund drive will be concluded. All workers are asked to turn their money in by meeting time.

Alex Kachmarik, chairman of the drive, said that early returns indicate a successful effort.

City organizations as well as business and industry are still to be contacted.

The money will be used to finance construction of concession stands at Memorial Stadium. The league hopes that revenue from those stands will finance the MFL program in the future.

The chief meal eaten on an African safari is said to be gazelle.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Topped Ball

Topped shots can be avoided. If topping the ball is one of your troubles, chances are you are raising up during your swing. If your head comes up during the swing, you raise the arc of the swing and catch the ball on top instead of in the middle.

A principal cause of raising up is a too-crouched position at the swing's start. Take a fairly erect position first with the back virtually straight. If you take this position at address, you have less chance of hitting the ball on top and dribbling the shot.

The stationary head is the key to this situation. And it is easier to keep the head still if you begin the stroke with your head in proper position. Keep your head firmly anchored throughout the stroke. The rest of the body moves, but the head does not — not until the ball is met and is on its way.

Trying to put too much effort into the swing also causes movement of the head; the result may easily be a topped shot. Swung within your maximum power to hit the ball solidly for distance and power.

Giardello Wins Over Calhoun in Bruising Bout

CLEVELAND (UP) — Middleweight contenders Joey (Rhubarb) Giardello and Rory Calhoun were as confused today about future plans, because of brow stitches, as the customers were Friday night about the winner of their bruising TV 10 - rounder at the Cleveland Arena.

Giardello, the 28-year-old ex-Philadelphian who now lives in New York, wound up with a split decision. He weighed 160 pounds to the 22-year-old Calhoun's 158.

Announcer Tom Dwyer was the innocent instigator of confusion when he made the mistake of announcing the only favorable vote for Calhoun of White Plains, N.Y., first. He announced that Referee Lou Parker had favored him on points, 46-45. That evoked such tremendous booing that no one heard Dwyer's next announcement that judge Herb Williams favored Giardello, 47-45. Some did hear that judge Charlie Bill had Giardello ahead, 46-45.

The uproar persisted until Dwyer grabbed Joey's right glove and held it aloft in token of victory.

Giardello suffered a four-stitch gash at the corner of his right eye, and was uncertain whether it would heal in time for him to accept a TV - bout with Germinal Ballarin of France at Norfolk, Va., on June 12.

Similarly a three-stitch cut suffered by Calhoun at the corner of his left eye in the fourth round, prevented his making any immediate plans — such as taking a bout with Charlie Joseph at New Orleans.

Monessen BC Wins Awards

Monessen Bowling Center won its share of awards at the annual Greater Pittsburgh League banquet the other night.

Then, too, the Monessen men received an award for placing second in the GPL race.

But the biggest kick of the night came when Eli Freville won the coveted Sportsman Award.

Mike Madzy also picked up a trophy for his 712 series, second best of the season.

Iron Liege Is Top Pick in Preakness

By RAY AYRES

BALTIMORE (UP) — Iron Liege, a longshot two weeks ago when he won the Kentucky Derby for Calumet Farm, is an odds-on favorite to win today's $113,800-added Preakness Stakes and climb another rung up the ladder of racing fame.

Seven colts are scheduled to run at old Pimlico in the mile and three-sixteenths classic with 80-degree temperature and showers predicted. A crowd of about 30,000 is expected for the 81st running of Maryland's classic for 3-year-olds, with a purse of $65,250 going to the winner.

The race is to be broadcast and telecast by CBS with post time set for 5:45 p.m. e.d.t.

Iron Liege 4-5 Favorite

If Iron Liege lives up to advance rating as a 4-5 favorite, he will be two-thirds of the way home in his quest for a Triple Crown. Only the Belmont Stakes June 15 then would stand between this son of Bull Lea and a place of honor on a roster now graced only by Sir Barton, Gallant Fox, Omaha, War Admiral, Whirlaway, Count Fleet, Assault and Citation.

Between Iron Liege and inclusion among such outstanding thoroughbred stars of yesteryear stand Bold Ruler, Federal Hill, Inswept, Nah Hiss, Promised Land and Inside Track. Their credentials range from record-breaking performances to the dubious distinction of fair efforts in allowance races.

Bill Hartack rides Iron Liege in the race that has knocked out more aspiring Triple Crown candidates than either the Kentucky Derby or the Preakness.

Eddie Arcaro rides Bold Ruler in quest of a sixth triumph in the Preakness while Willie Carstens handles Federal Hill. Ted Atkinson rides Promised Land, Joe Culmone rides Inswept, Bobby Ussery will ride Nah Hiss, and Eldon Nelson will ride Inside Tract.

Only Three Serious Challengers

Bold Ruler, who finished fourth as favorite in the Kentucky Derby, and Federal Hill, who set the early pace in the Louisville classic only to tire in the stretch, loom as the only serious challengers in the small field. A victory by any of the others seems remote.

Until the Kentucky Derby, Bold Ruler had little trouble beating Iron Liege this year although handling Gen. Duke, another crackerjack colt owned by Calumet, was a different matter. But when Gen. Duke was forced out of the Kentucky Derby by injury, Iron Liege came into his own with a vengeance. Gen. Duke was withdrawn from the Preakness when he re-injured the foot that kept him out of the Derby.

Big Seven Is Now Big Eight

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP)—The Big Seven today began getting used to its new name—the Big Eight—and its newest member — Oklahoma A&M.

The Aggies formally were announced into the conference Friday marking the first school to join the group since Colorado was admitted 10 years ago.

Conference Executive Secretary Reaves Peters said the Aggies' application for admission was unanimously approved and that Oklahoma A&M would begin competing by next spring in all sports except football and basketball.

Peters said the Aggies would begin conference competition in basketball during the 1958-59 season and would start scheduling conference football games "as soon as a schedule can be arranged—probably by 1961."

Sports Car Races Underway at Cumberland, Md.

CUMBERLAND, Md. (UP) — Sports car racing enthusiasts, more used to the conventional banked oval get the feel of a different track today in compulsory time trials for the sixth annual Cumberland Sports Car "spectacular" over a treacherous, seven-cornered 1 6-mile course.

The amateur speed demons, more than 200 of them, will hotfoot it in cars of all makes around hazardous, hair-pin twists and turns laid out on the community's old Municipal Airport.

Eight races are scheduled Sunday in as many different motor classifications, determined by the cubic inch displacement of the motor.

Walter Hansgen, Westfield, N.J., who won last year's feature race in a Jaguar, will pilot the same car, one of three Jaguars entered by millionaire sportsman Briggs Cunningham, of Greens Farms, Conn.

The drivers included at least two women, Mrs. W. J. M. Wylie, Allison Park, Pa., near Pittsburgh, and Suzie Dietrich, of Sandusky, Ohio, known as the "Brunette Bomber," who will pilot a German Porsche 550 Spyder.

Score May Be Back with Tribe By June 9

CLEVELAND (UP)—Southpaw Herb Score appears on the way to complete recovery and he may be back on the firing line for the Cleveland Indians again as early as June 9.

Score, struck in the right eye by Gil McDougald's line drive during a game with the Yankees on May 7, received the brightest news Friday since he was hospitalized when Drs. Charles Thomas, an eye specialist, and Donald B. Kelly, the Indians' club physician, told him he had suffered no retinal detachment.

The two doctors were able to get an unhampered look at Score's entire retina for the first time Friday and they reported:

"There is no tear (puncture) evident at this time."

If Score recovers in normal fashion, he could be ready to pitch for the Indians again when he officially comes off baseball's disabled list on June 9.

Area Syndicate After Florida Race Track

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The head of a syndicate of Western Pennsylvania sportsmen admitted Friday night the group probably would bid for the purchase of Tropical Park, if the Florida race track is put up for sale.

Dan Parrish, president of the syndicate which purchased Randall Park race track near Cleveland last February for $3,600,000, said his group is interested in owning a winter-season track.

Tropical Park's chief owner is Saul Silberman, who sold Randall Park to the syndicate. His license has been revoked by the Florida Racing Commission, but he has an appeal pending.

"If Tropical is actually put up for sale we will make a bid for it," Parrish said. "However, if Silberman wins his case I understand he will continue to operate it."

Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers professional football club, is a member of the Parrish syndicate.

Redlegs Roll on Behind Fine Pitching by Gross; Chisox Win

By UNITED PRESS

Southpaw Don Gross spent part of last season with Havana of the International League but his future in Cincinnati seems assured if he keeps pitching the way he did Friday night in beating the New York Giants, 11-1, with a fine five-hit effort.

The 25-year-old Gross now has hurled three complete-game victories and has yet to be defeated. He is just one more good reason why the Redlegs have won 15 of their last 16 games.

Friday night, Frank Robinson blasted a pair of homers, his fifth and sixth of the season, to drive in four runs, while Gus Bell drove in the same number with a homer and two singles. Robinson, Bell and Crowe each collected three hits in the Redlegs' 16-hit attack. Gross blanked the Giants until Dusty Rhodes homered in the eighth.

All that fine hitting and pitching stretched Cincinnati's lead to a game and a half over second-place Milwaukee and three games over third-place Brooklyn.

The Phillies came from behind to defeat the Cardinals, 5-3, while rain caused postponement of the games between the Pirates and Braves and the Dodgers and Cubs.

Chisox Pad Lead

In the American League, the White Sox won their sixth consecutive game and increased their league lead to a game and a half by beating the Orioles, 3-2; southpaw Billy Hoeft of the Tigers stopped the Yankees, 4-1; the Indians climbed into a second-place tie with the Yanks by licking the Senators, 3-1, and the Red Sox nipped the Athletics, 4-3.

Pinch hitter Marv Blaylock's three-run homer off loser Sam Jones in the sixth inning proved the decisive wallop in the Phils-Cards contest. Robin Roberts fell behind when he gave up homers to Wally Moon and Ken Boyer but he settled down and blanked St Louis after the third inning to register his third victory. Harry Anderson also homered for the Phils.

Minnie Minoso's two-run double in the eighth inning brought the White Sox from behind to their victory over left-hander Art Ceccarelli of the Orioles. Dick Donovan was the winner for Chicago although he needed Paul LaPalme's help in the eighth. Tito Francona homered for the Orioles, who lost their fifth straight.

Hoeft Licks Yanks

Hoeft celebrated both his 25th birthday and his return to action after a three-week layoff due to a sore shoulder in beating the Yankees on eight hits. Charlie Maxwell, Bill Tuttle and Al Kaline each hit homers. It marked Hoeft's first complete game of the year and his first victory. Johnny Kucks was the loser.

The Indians scored their victory at the expense of Camilo Pascual when Rocky Colavito delivered a two-run bloop single in the fifth. Pascual struck out 11 and yielded all eight Cleveland hits in the eight innings he worked. Southpaw Bud Daley, making his second start of the season for the Tribe, was the winner although Ray Narleski bailed him out in the eighth.

Jim Piersall broke a 3-3 tie in the ninth inning of the Boston-Kansas City game with a double that scored Pete Daley and sent the A's down to their fourth straight loss. Tom Brewer gave up seven hits for the Red Sox in going the distance for his fifth triumph. Rip Coleman, Kansas City's third pitcher, was the loser. Vic Power and Jackie Jensen hit homers.

Pirates Meet Braves on TV This Afternoon

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—Ronnie Kline, still looking for his first victory, takes the mound for the Pittsburgh Pirates this afternoon in the final game of the series with the Milwaukee Braves.

Kline, with four defeats on his record, will be opposed by either Lew Burdette (4-2) or Taylor Phillips (2-0).

The teams were rained out of Friday night's scheduled game and the game was not re-scheduled.

After today's game, the Pirates move on to Cincinnati where they play the league leaders in a doubleheader Sunday. On Tuesday they go to St. Louis for two games and then Philadelphia for a four-game series with the Phillies.

Pirates manager Bobby Bragan took time Friday to do some crystal-gazing and predicted Milwaukee may be the team to beat for the pennant. He said the Braves have "pitching, experience and Hank Aaron's hitting." Brooklyn has to depend too much on youngsters and Cincinnati, "while it has to be reckoned with, lacks enough good pitching," he said.

Williams, Mantle Are Both Fined

CHICAGO (UP) — New York Yankee outfielder Mickey Mantle and Boston Red Sox outfielder Ted Williams were $25 poorer today—they almost literally threw the money away, along with their bats.

American League President Will Harridge fined the two Friday after umpires reported they threw their bats even after a league order specifically told players to hold on to their clubs.

Williams was fined for throwing his bat in a game against Detroit on Wednesday, while Mantle threw his in a game at Baltimore on May 10.

Small Disarmament Cuts from the U. S.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Administrative officials disclosed today the United States will agree only to "very small" disarmament cuts pending a test of Russia's good faith.

The question of an East-West reduction of arms, manpower, and military expenditures is under the closest top-level scrutiny here.

Presidential Disarmament Adviser Harold E. Stassen conferred for 2½ hours Friday afternoon on disarmament with top state, defense, atomic, National Security Council and intelligence officials. The lengthy meeting was held almost immediately after Stassen arrived home for 10 days of talks during a recess in the London disarmament meeting.

But as the administration discussed disarmament behind closed doors, there were initial warnings that disarmament may run into trouble in Congress.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland noted in a Chicago speech that suggestions had been made that President Eisenhower's East-West "open skies" inspection plan be modified. He said Russia proposes that "in exchange for our air inspection over Siberia that (it) be allowed to inspect Alaska and all of the United States west of the Mississippi." Moscow suggested the plan on April 30.

"This compromise proposal does not appeal to me," Knowland said. "It sounds too much like a Communist recipe for rabbit stew of equal parts—one horse to one rabbit."

The administration is expected to propose to the Soviets when the London talks resume after May 27 that a special air-ground inspection area be set up in Siberia, Alaska and northern Canada. There is no plan to include the United States in a test agreement.

Officials said caution would be the watchword in developing any first step approach toward East-West disarmament. They said any cuts in American forces and defense expenditures under an agreement with the Soviets would be "very small" at first.

Not Driving

MUSKETON HEIGHTS, Mich. (UP)—Drunk driving charges against Sidney Piasecki, 48, were dropped when he submitted a good defense—he wasn't driving. Piasecki was the sole occupant of the car on his arrest. He explained his wife had been driving, but she became angry with him and parked the car and walked away.

Parente Accomplished 'What'?? Your Debt $6,315,000.00

This is an ESTIMATE of what "YOU" possibly will owe under Parente:

ITEM		DEBT	APPROX. YEARLY INTEREST
Redevelopment Program	UNDER PARENTE $2,000,000	$1,200,000 Est.	$26,000
Seneca St. Sewer		800,000	20,000
Paving, Schoonmaker Ave. (1957)		150,000 Est.	5,000
Parking Plaza		350,000	16,000
City Bonded Debt		515,000	18,000
Sewage Disposal System		1,300,000	29,000
Investment in Water Plant		1,000,000	23,000
School District Debt		1,000,000	23,000
"YOUR" POSSIBLE DEBT		$6,315,000	$160,000

If Parente's Redevelopment Costs reach $2,000,000; then your debt could reach $7,115,000. I am in favor of "ONLY" what is NECESSARY and ESSENTIAL to redevelop for the welfare and betterment of the City. "ALL" unnecessary and non-essential projects will be eliminated.

I "GUARANTEE" you that "IF" Parente is re-elected, Parente WILL "INCREASE" your property TAXES "SUBSTANTIALLY" to take care of INCREASING yearly sinking fund payments and INCREASING yearly interest charges. And when the "WAGE" TAX REVENUE drops from $220,000 yearly to $90,000 yearly due to depression years ahead IS the SECOND REASON why you can expect HIGHER TAXES under Parente. A third reason could be on account of a large amount of taxes being delinquent during those years. Also by "HIS" playing politics with the tax issues. Four years ago I PREDICTED that Parente would double your TAX ASSESSMENT, and I PREDICTED that Parente would INCREASE YOUR PROPERTY TAXES. Yes, Parente "DID" INCREASE your Property taxes from 8 2-3 mills to 9½ mills, and Parente "DID" INCREASE your ASSESSMENTS 50%.

Four years ago I wrote an article, "Depression on the Horizon—Watch 1958 to 1963." Now look back the past 12 years and find that every mayoralty election, the Mayor has a spending program "TO GET VOTES", but the other three years the Mayor does practically NOTHING. In the early part of 1954 many people were laid off, BUT DID "HE" have any program to HELP? NO, because it wasn't election time. The Mayor believes in spending large sums of City revenue during election and prosperous times, and a MEAGER amount during slack times. He expects the Federal government to do the whole job, BUT it will have requirements that must be met. With "HIS" possible SEVEN MILLION dollar BONDED DEBT, we will not have much borrowing capacity left. CHARLEROI and other cities have "NO" BONDED DEBT, AND CAN FACE the future with CLEAN HANDS, BUT Monessen's prospects for DEBT INCREASES look "TOO" staggering, that's "WHY" I call it the CITY BEHIND!

AFTER "TWELVE" years of Parente we still have "MANY" STREETS on the hill that haven't been WIDENED. We still have some "UNPAVED" STREETS, such as Grant, Athalia, Graham, Alexander, Lookout avenues, etc. We still have FILTH going over streets, such as Seneca street, near Tube street, etc.

HE "FAILED" to announce that the Shopping Center on the Fountry site was a "FLOP". HE FAILED to inform you that the other Shopping Center on Grand Blvd. (next to the Firemen's Club) FELL THROUGH, after the City spent about $20,000 or more on a sewer there. "HE" plays politics with the ZONING ORDINANCE. HE lacked "foresight" on the Seneca St. Sewer, thereby having to do the same thing "TWICE" and now more costly. WHO created the idea to use parking meters for commercial advertising purposes? "HE" WIDENED every street the BUS TRAVELS ON. HE forced the people on Knox. Summit and Maple avenue, and Third street and other streets to park their cars in their yards.

HE is showing pictures of how many churches, homes, streets, etc., were built in Monessen. He could NOT have "STOPPED" the building of new homes EVEN IF HE WANTED TO. The building of new homes is being done NATION-WIDE in spite of the Mayor. PEOPLE build homes because they "NEED" them "NOT" to please the Mayor. The Mayor did not build them. He had NO part in them. Over 500 homes would have been built EVEN IF a "DUNCE" was MAYOR. The Mayor accomplished "NOTHING" EXTRAORDINARY that any other man would not have done in other cities. In FACT, "MANY" other CITIES have DONE "MORE" with "LESS" taxpayers' money. HIS Parking Plaza is destined a failure. Traffice and parking problems are NOT SOLVED.

Put "ALL" of your "FLOPS" and BLUNDERS in your picture film for that's WHAT YOU DID in TWELVE years for Monessen, and don't take credit for work done by OTHERS, including the freeing of the bridge. Monessen is the CITY BEHIND when cars have to crawl bumper to bumper on Donner avenue. "SILENCE" is an admittance of THEIR GUILT! FACTS and FIGURES DO NOT "LIE".

DON'T make it "SIXTEEN" YEARS of Parente's "EXPERIENCED" BLUNDERS! DRINK THEIR BEER, CARRY THEIR SIGNS, AND TAKE THEIR MONEY, BUT VOTE FOR A "WATCH DOG" of City Spending by VOTING:

Leader Delays Conference of Party Leaders

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today announced postponement of a conference slated for next Wednesday with legislative leaders of both parties for further discussion on legislation to be enacted during the remainder of the session.

The governor's office said House Speaker W. Stuart Helm (R-Armstrong) requested the postponement. The office said the meeting would probably be held later in the week.

Gov. Leader scheduled the conference in an effort to reach further agreements on both the administration program and that proposed by the Republicans. Some 200 administration bills are tied up in GOP-controlled committees in the General Assembly.

A meeting earlier this month resulted in both sides indicating some areas of agreement were reached.

Today in Congress —

Johnson in Another Attack on Budget

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) further stocked up the budget controversy today with his second attack on the administration this week.

Johnson said he would "like to know when we will have one party in control of the executive branch of our government." He said "right now we seem to have two"—those who favor cutting the budget and those who argue that doing so would endanger national security.

He made the statement to reporters Friday night after President Eisenhower called for the election of a Republican Congress in 1958. Eisenhower said in a telephone address to a GOP rally in Cincinnati that political responsibility can be definitely fixed only when one party controls both the White House and Congress.

Johnson last Monday accused the administration of talking "out of both sides of its mouth" on the budget question. He called on Eisenhower to publicly side with either the "spending wing" or "economy wing."

The Senate kept up the running attack on the budget Friday by chopping $257,928,710 from the Commerce Department budget for next fiscal year. The bill providing $613,548,290 went to a Senate-House conference committee.

Other congressional news:

Writeoffs: Defense mobilizer Gordon Gray has asked Congress to give President Eisenhower authority to grant rapid tax write-offs for any industrial expansion required "in the interest of national defense. Gray said he made the recommendation to the Senate Finance Committee which is considering a bill to curtail such writeoffs. The bill would limit the writeoffs to production facilities for new defense items and for defense research and developments.

Refugees: A House immigration subcommittee will conduct a hearing next Thursday or Friday on President Eisenhower's proposal to grant asylum each year to 67,000 refugees fleeing Communism. Subcommittee Chairman Francis E. Walter said the hearing also will look into the government's operation of the Hungarian refugee program.

Natural Gas: Mayor Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia has told the House Commerce Committee that consumers would be in for "quite a clipping" if Congress passes the natural gas bill. He said the legislation would result in the natural gas industry getting "hundreds of millions of dollars of increased profits."

Police Crackdown On Political Signs

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Police here are enforcing a city ordinance with a vengeance.

In a 16-hour period from Wednesday night to early Thursday, officers tore down a total of 279 political posters from utility poles and public buildings.

Police Chief Charles R. Griffith said the city-wide cleanup was being conducted impartially without regard to candidates or parties. It is illegal here to put advertising of any kind on poles or public buildings.

Praise Leader For His Stand On Gambling

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UP)—The Western Pennsylvania Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church commended Gov. George M. Leader Thursday for his stand against legalized gambling and relaxation of liquor control laws.

Delegates to the conference's annual meeting voted to send the governor a letter commending him for his "firm and consistent stand against proposed gambling legislation in Pennsylvania" and for his stand against "any liberalization of present liquor control laws."

The delegates also elected the Rev. William M. West, Brookville, to the board of trustees of the Lewisburg Evangelical Home and discussed plans to raise $15,000 for Camp Allegheny, a church camp at Buckstown, Somerset County.

Business and Industry

New Plymouth Suburban at Frank's Garage Is Lower, More Powerful

One of the new '57 Plymouth models sold at Frank's Service Garage, DeSoto-Plymouth sales and service, 122 East Donner avenue, is the Suburban.

1957 Plymouth models are as much as five inches lower than corresponding 1956 models. The wheelbase has been lengthened from 115 inches for all models in 1956 to 118 inches for standard models and 122 inches for Suburban station wagons in the 1957 line.

The new car has the appearance of greater length which comes from functional styling. A broad hood, soaring tail fins and forward thrusting headlight brow all contribute to the impression of length.

In chassis design, Plymouth has accomplished its most significant change since the introduction of independent front wheel suspensions with coil springs in 1934. The feature is called Torsion-Aire.

In the overall re-design of the front suspension, coil springs have disappeared. They are replaced by torsion bar springs, which together with other equally basic improvements in both front and rear, produce a new kind of ride and new "handling."

The completely new front suspension and steering system creates a remarkable degree of stability under forces of acceleration, braking, and cornering. At the same time, according to Plymouth engineers, the vehicle is more softly sprung than ever before. For the first time on an American passenger car, ball joints are combined with torsion bar springs to create the unique combination of ride and handling characteristics. A new rear suspension incorporates relocated leaf springs, which contributes to the new better ride.

All of the 1957 Plymouths have more powerful engines than 1956 models. The standard V-8 for all models except the Plaza in the new Fury 301, the number signifying displacement. The Plaza V-8 retains a displacement of 277 cubic inches but, like the Fury 301, has a new camshaft, new carburetion, and other innovations to achieve increased performance and economy.

The compression ratio of the Fury 301 is 8.5 to 1. Plaza V-8 compression remains at 8 to 1. The compression ratio of the Power-Flow Six is increased from 7.6 to 1 in 1956 to 8 to 1 in 1957.

Other innovations in the 1957 line include:

New 14-inch wheels and low pressure, large section tires.

New 11-inch brakes, of Chrysler Corporations Total - Contact design.

A new integral all-weather air-conditioning system which combines heating, cooling, dehumidifying and ventilating in one underhood unit, available on all V-8 models.

Padded instrument panel and sun visors available as optional equipment.

New safety recessed center steering wheel.

New full-view windshields with 45 per cent greater glass area in sedans and Suburbans and 43 per cent greater in hardtops.

State Senators For Creation of Aging Commission

HARRISBURG (UP) — Three state senators have proposed creation of a special state Commission on Aging to meet the problems of Pennsylvania's elderly population.

A bill introduced in the Legislature Thursday by Democratic Sens. Joseph J. Yosko (Northampton), Thomas J. Kalman (Fayette) and Frank W. Ruth (Berks) would create a 16-member study group, to serve without pay for a five year term. Commissioners would be appointed from the General Assembly and the public at large, plus the state secretaries of health, welfare, commerce and labor and industry, and the state treasurer.

The commission would be authorized to:

—Make a continuing study of all data and programs "pertaining to the aging processes and the needs of the older persons" of the state.

—Serve as the central permanent agency for the coordination of programs and services.

—Disseminate information of value to the public on "the diverse subject of aging."

Cardinal Receives His Hat

VATICAN CITY (UP) — Polish primate Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski today received his symbolic red cardinal's hat from Pope Pius XII in a ceremony delayed four years and four months by Communist persecution.

Cardinal Wyszynski, spiritual leader of 25 million Polish Catholics, ended his seclusion in the Polish Convent of the Nuns of the Sacred family to go to the Vatican for his second meeting with the Pope since he arrived from Warsaw May 8.

The Vatican kept the ceremony as private as possible, apparently so as not to overstress the victory won by the church from the new Polish regime of Wladyslaw Gomulka which released Cardinal Wyszynski from detention seven months ago.

The Vatican considered the primate's release a mere "glimmer of light" in a Poland still dominated by the Communists. And it apparently feared that emphasis on this success might antagonize Poland's rulers who are still die-hard Communists.

Today's ceremony put the final touch on Wyszynski's investiture as a cardinal although Vatican sources pointed out it had only a symbolic value. They said he legally became a cardinal the moment the Pope appointed him to that rank in the consistory of Jan. 12, 1953.

The cardinal did not come to Rome on that occasion for fear that he would not be permitted to reenter Poland.

Your Health—

Have Your Annual Check-up

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

A thorough annual checkup probably is the best way to protect yourself from the ravages of cancer. Most cancer is curable in the early stages. So the quicker it is discovered, the better.

Just what is a thorough examination? Well, as a minimum, I would suggest you ask your doctor to make the following check:

Examine the skin of your face, body and extremities for scaly, bleeding warts, black moles and unhealed scars.

Examine your lips, tongue, cheeks, tonsils and pharynx for persistent ulcerations, the larynx for hoarseness and the lungs for persistent coughing.

Examine the subcutaneous tissue for lumps on the arms, legs or body.

Examine the lymphoid system for enlargement of the nodes of the neck, armpit, groin, etc.

For women he should examine the breasts for lumps.

He should also examine the uterus for enlargement, lacerations, bleeding or new growths. A bimanual examination will determine the condition of the ovaries.

Investigate any symptoms of persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. He should carefully feel the abdomen.

Examine the urine for blood with the aid of a microscope.

Examine the rectum and determine the cause of any pain or bleeding.

Examine the bones and make an x-Ray diagnosis of any bone that may be the seat of any boring pain which becomes worse at night.

Question and Answer

B. E. N.: I have been troubled with a catarrhal condition since childhood. Is there any cure?

Answer: This condition may be the result of an infection in the throat, the tonsils or the sinuses. A crooked nasal bone or polyps in the nose may also cause it.

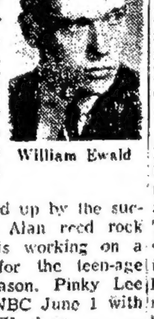
A thorough and careful examination should be made by a physician to determine the source of the excessive secretions.

Former NBC Chief to Produce for CBS TV

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — The channel swim. . .

Sylvester "Pat" Weaver, former president of NBC, may produce six special shows for CBS-TV next fall. Delco, a division of General Motors, wants Weaver to turn out a series of public affairs programs for CBS-TV that would be emceed by Lowell Thomas.



William Ewald

CBS-TV has signed two of Jackie Gleason's writers, Marvin Marx and Walter Stone, to five-year contracts. Marx and Stone, with Gleason for six years, will turn out comedy strips including a possible series format for Art Carney.

ABC-TV, hopped up by the success of its two Alan reed rock n' roll shows, is working on a musical series for the teen-age set for next season. Pinky Lee comes back to NBC June 1 with another kiddie TV show.

Hal March, suffering from a sore left arm and shoulder, went back into traction at a Manhattan hospital after this Tuesday's "The $64,000 question." The latest Nielsen ratings from Great Britain shows only one American show in the top 10—"Dragnet" is No. 2.

"Playhouse 90" is planning to do Clifford Odets' "Clash By Night" next fall. Sid Caesar, who asked his viewers to send in their favorite comedy bits so he might repeat them on his final show, May 25, has pulled in 11,000 replies thus far.

"Hans Brinker" is shaping up as a pre-Christmas spec at NBC-TV with Dick Button and Tab Hunter. Right after Jackie Gleason's last show, June 22, choreographer June Taylor will fly to Buenos Aires, Argentina, to produce a revue set for a 16-week run.

Mickey Spillane, the author, is planning to write a comedy detective series with Henny Youngman as star. Producer Sam Gallu and writer Alan Sloane of ABC-TV's "Navy Log" will turn out a special documentary, "Seapower in the Atomic Age," for the Navy. Frank Sinatra's Friday night series for ABC-TV next fall will break down like this: Two special variety shows, 13 musical shows and 13 dramas, all starring Sinatra. In addition, there'll be 10 other dramas with Sinatra as host.

Wood Windows Have Advantages, Experts Claim

Ask most any builder why he installs wood windows in his homes and he's likely to come up with reasons like this:

1. Ponderosa pine, the wood used for most high quality windows, doesn't conduct heat. As a natural insulator, it eliminates condensation on sash and frames.

2. Wood does not rust and is not corroded by salt air or chemical fumes.

3. Most windows of ponderosa pine come in units, with weatherstripping installed and frame and sash fitted together at the factory. This reduces labor costs to the builder and assures easy operation.

4. New buildings settle slowly, often throwing windows and doors out of line. Windows of ponderosa pine can be readily adjusted to operate smoothly.

5. Wood takes any decorative finish, paint or stain, and can be redecorated when color schemes are changed, inside and out.

6. Wood doesn't readily transmit sound. Rattling due to vibration is kept at a minimum and operation is quiet.

Plan Escape Routes in Case Of Home Fire

You'd scream blue murder if the school your child attends failed to hold fire drills. But, have you planned how to leave — and live — if fire starts in your own home?

Plan escape routes from all parts of the house you regularly use — especially bedrooms, advises the National Fire Protection Association.

Windows, porch roofs, ladders, back stairs and outside fire escapes, says the Association, are some of the escape means that you must be ready to use when normal exits are blocked.

Arrange for practical ways to rescue small children, aged and sick persons.

Once out, keep track of the children — make certain they do not re-enter the house.

Safety Experts Make Suggestions

Experts on home safety stress that in the event of an emergency it should be possible to reach the outdoors quickly from every room in the house. Windows with removable sash are recommended for this reason. For example, the sash of R.O.W. removable wood windows can be taken from the frame in less than ten seconds. You simply press the sash to the left against an adjustable spring, and then swing the sash into the room. The window opening provides a wide exist which the room's occupants can easily pass through to safety.

HERE'S HOW...

MAKE A RAIL FENCE

An easily maintained and attractive fence is made with rail-type construction. Naturally durable or treated wood should be used. It is suggested that even with naturally durable wood, the underground portion of the posts should be treated to prolong the life of the post. Extend the treatment to about 4 inches above the ground level.

The posts are cut to a length of 60 inches. The top is pyramidal as shown to provide drainage for rain. Mark the location of the rails on the side faces of the posts. The rails may be fastened to the posts by dowel joints or by notching the posts and inserting the rails. For dowel jointing, use at least two pins for each joint. Drill holes 1¾ inches deep and ⅝ inch in diameter. For notching, drill holes 1½ inches deep along the edge of the section to be removed and chisel out the holes.

Posts may be of 4 by 4 or 6 by 6-inch lumber and rails of 2 by 2 or larger if desired.

Locate and dig the holes for the posts 24 inches deep. Cover the bottom inch of the holes with gravel. Set the posts in concrete.

The rails are cut 7 feet long if dowel joint construction is used and 7¼ feet long if they are inserted in the posts.

Attic Fans Can Be Big Help in Cooling

Attic fans of the suction box type, designed to draw all air out of a house within a few minutes and thereby cause fresh air to breeze in through windows, are one of the least expensive methods of summer cooling.

The effectiveness of such exhaust fans is usually a matter of hearsay rather than exact measurement. However, recent tests made in Dayton, O., show surprising comparative temperatures involved in the use of attis fans.

On a hot summer day, attic temperature in a two-story house was found to run as high as 130 degrees. With normal insulation, the upstairs bedrooms registered up to 102 degrees. Temperatures downstairs were 92.

Because of the heat absorbed by the house structure during the day, the night-time temperature in the attic dropped to only 102 degrees, despite much cooler night air outside. Upstairs bedrooms registered 95 and the downstairs remained at 90 for hours. Not until early morning did the house become comfortable.

With a fan cooling system installed in the attic, the daytime temperature was lowered from 130 to 103. This dropped second floor bedroom temperatures to 85 degrees during the day, instead of of 102, and downstairs readings ranged around 80 instead of 92.

The air movement through the house kept walls and ceilings cooler, so that night-time temperatures took a nose-dive to 82 in the attic, 76 on the second floor and 75 on the first floor.

How to Clean Your Station Wagons

Large families and the exodus to suburbia has brought about a boom in station wagon sales. In addition to handsome good looks, these cars offer the utmost in practicality. Besides the huge load-carrying capacity, station wagons are perfect for hauling swarms of children. Cleaning interiors of these versatile vehicles is probably easier than cleaning sedans since washable materials are used. A couple of galvanized steel pails, one filled with soapy wash water and the other with rinse water, a sponge and elbow-grease will do the job in short order.

To Clean Mirrors

Clean smuged or dusty mirrors easily with two galvanized steel pails and three soft cloths. Fill one pail with soapy water and the other with rinse water. Wipe each mirror clean with a cloth wrung out in soapy water and then rinse and dry with a lint-free cloth.

Lampshades Need Special Care

Washing handstitched lampshades requires considerable care. Shades with glued seams cannot be safely washed. Handsewn shades may be identified by stitching on the seams. Gentleness and caution are necessary in washing lampshades to prevent streaking and distortion.

The only equipment needed for the job includes two galvanized steel laundry tubs, one filled with lukewarm, sudsy water and the other with lukewarm, clear rinse water and a towel.

Grasp the shade by the wire frame and quickly dip it several times into the suds. Rinse the suds from the shade by dipping it two or three times into the rinse water and remove excess moisture from the shade immediately by wiping gently with the towel. This prevents streaks and water marks on the shade. Hang the shade by its frame in a dry, cool place to dry thoroughly before putting it back into use. At no time should your hands touch the shade itself or streaks and smudges will result.

More New Homes Are Needed

Rate of growth of the U. S. is faster than either government of industry thought, according to Census Bureau figures just released. It had been assumed that the rate of family growth was 600,000 a year, but the number of households increased in the U. S. from 43,600,000 in 1950 to 48,800,000 in 1956, an average annual gain of 900,000.

It will take more than a million and a quarter new homes a year, said H. V. Simpson of the West Coast Lumbermen's Association just to keep even with the burgeoning growth of our dynamic nation. Fortunately, he said, we will never run out of lumber. America's basic home building material, for west coast forests which produce half the nation's lumber needs are on a sustained yield basis to grow lumber for generations in the future.

Cans Ideal For Paint

A wise policy is to keep a couple of empty coffee cans in hand when you have any small paint jobs coming up. They are handy for mixing paint and wide enough to take a good sized paint brush which may not fit readily in a quart can. They make good storage containers for nails and screws, too.
